

Kevin Has Lost His Mood

Kevin was sitting at home impatiently and was watching TV without interest! The TV programs were all repetitive! Kevin turned off the TV and went to his mom, who was cooking in the kitchen!

Mom, I'm not in the mood!

His mother asked: "Why are you not in the mood?"

Kevin said: "I think I have lost my mood! Because until a few minutes ago, my mood was in the right place!"

Kevin's mom said: So let's go together and look for your mood in the house!

They started looking.

Kevin said: What do you think a mood looks like, mom?

His mother thought a little and said: For example, like a plastic ball?

Kevin saw a plastic ball in the corner of his room! He shot it into the basket and jumped up happily:

Hooray! Goal!

A little later, he lost his mood again.

Mom! What does a mood look like?

His mother said: "For example, like a hand puppet?"

Kevin's mother put on a hand puppet, changed her voice and said:

Sir! Are you looking for your mood? Your mood is with me. But first tell me who you are and what you are?

Kevin said: "I am a human and my name is Kevin!"

What did you eat and what are you doing? Kevin's mom asked.

I had lunch and I am playing!

Kevin answered all of Puppet's questions and laughed out loud at his funny words!

A little later, Kevin's mood was lost again!

What does a mood look like, mom?

Like a storybook? Kevin's mother picked up a story book and started reading! In his imagination, Kevin sat in the chocolate hut and ate delicious desserts and laughed!

A little later, Kevin's mother left to do her chores! What did Kevin do? Kevin took his ball and threw it in the air! He picked up the story book and read a story to Puppet and laughed!

That night, at bedtime, Kevin's mom asked him: "Did you find your mood, honey?"

Yes Mom! My mood was hidden in the ball and a puppet and a storybook! Then Kevin slept happily with his great mood.
